

Suggested Interview Questions

Jill Williamson author of

Replication: The Jason Experiment

- 1) Jill, your new book has an intriguing title. What is the Jason Experiment?
- 2) What inspired you to write a story about clones?
- 3) And this book takes place in Alaska. Why there?
- 4) What was it like growing up in Alaska?
- 5) You touch on some controversial topics in this book. How do you handle that?
- 6) Some people claim that clones would not have souls if they were created by man and not God. How would you respond to that statement?
- 7) In a facility with fifty-five boys with the same DNA, where scientists force obedience and conformity, the boys have very different personalities. Why is that?
- 8) When Abby meets Martyr, she finds him very naïve about the ways of the world. Why did you write his character this way?
- 9) Martyr's character is eager to learn about God, who Abby explains to be the Creator of Everything. Why is Martyr so eager to believe in a Creator?
- 10) You created two book trailers for this novel. Why did you do that?
- 11) You leave a few questions unanswered in this book. Is there a sequel planned?
- 12) Where can our listeners learn more about you and Replication?

For more information about Replication: The Jason Experiment or to set up an interview with Jill Williamson, contact Candice Frederick at (212) 971-9707 or candice@djccommunications.com.